“Meaningfully Differentiate” EXOR Offer*EXOR Urges All Shareholders to Vote AGAINST AXIS Transaction at Shareholder
Meeting Scheduled for August 7th

EXOR S.p.A. (“EXOR”; EXO.IM), one of Europe’s leading listed investment companies and the largest shareholder of PartnerRe Ltd. (“PartnerRe”; NYSE:PRE), welcomes the recommendation from Glass Lewis & Co. Following its detailed review of the reasonably expected timing, certainty and risks of the proposals Glass Lewis & Co stated that “Exor’s offer is superior” and that PartnerRe Common and Preferred Shareholders should vote AGAINST the three proposals related to the AXIS transaction at the PartnerRe Special General Meeting (“SGM”) to be held on August 7, 2015. Glass Lewis is a leading independent governance analysis and proxy voting advisor for institutional investors.

The Glass Lewis report follows that of Institutional Investor Services (ISS), another leading proxy voting advisory firm, which last week also recommended PartnerRe shareholders vote against the AXIS transaction.

In its recommendation to vote AGAINST the PartnerRe – AXIS amalgamation, Glass Lewis said:

- “For common shareholders...the relative immediacy and certainty of an all-cash offer at a premium valuation (which we believe is in line with prior transactions involving reinsurers) makes Exor's offer more attractive...”
- “For preferred shareholders, Exor's commitment to deliver the full economic value of the dividend rate increase at closing, in the absence of an IRS ruling otherwise blessing the rate increase for the next five years, as well as its limitation on capital distributions, continue to meaningfully differentiate Exor's exchange offer as compared to the "matching" exchange offer under the [AXIS] proposed merger.”

- “We believe other relevant factors for preferred shareholders’ consideration, including expected ratings on debt and preferred shares and resulting leverage post-transaction, are relatively equal, while the lack of execution and integration risks argue in favor of EXOR’s offer, as compared to the proposed merger with AXIS.”
- “We believe Exor has raised reasonable concerns with regards to the ability of PartnerRe/Axis to ultimately realize the benefits envisioned, especially to the extent advertised by the companies... We aren't convinced that this theoretical value [of the PartnerRe/AXIS merger], based on a number of direct and indirect assumptions, is truly attainable in the near term, given the inherent uncertainties discussed...”
- “We don’t believe that [AXIS’ stock price] serves as a reliable indication of the merger consideration due to the impact that the takeover speculation may have had on Axis’ stock price. Therefore, we generally referred to an implied value of $131.17 per share [for the PartnerRe/AXIS merger implied purchase price] throughout our analysis.”
- “We remain cognizant of the integration risks inherent in such a transformative transaction [PartnerRe/AXIS]. Even with some similarity and familiarity between the two companies, difficulties often arise once it becomes time to combine two disparate entities with separate businesses, structures and philosophies, particularly when reducing staff and continuing to operate in a challenging and competitive environment.”
- “Therefore, given the existence of what we believe to be a superior offer from Exor for both common and preferred shareholders of PartnerRe, we believe shareholders should oppose the proposed merger with Axis.”

EXOR reminds PartnerRe shareholders that voting AGAINST the AXIS transaction at the SGM on August 7th is a critical step to enable PartnerRe to accept EXOR’s fully-financed, all-cash superior offer, delivering Common Shareholders the certainty of $140.50 per share in cash and providing Preferred Shareholders with a conservative credit profile and significantly enhanced terms.

In line with the Glass Lewis recommendation, EXOR therefore also urges PartnerRe Common and Preferred Shareholders to vote the GOLD proxy card AGAINST all three proposals related to the AXIS transaction and asks shareholders not to sign or return any WHITE proxy cards they receive from PartnerRe. Shareholders who have already returned a WHITE proxy card can change their vote by simply returning the GOLD proxy card. EXOR notes that Glass Lewis has recommended that PartnerRe shareholders do not vote PartnerRe’s WHITE proxy card.
